The film has been dubbed in Telugu as "Dalit", and in Tamil as "Adai". Amitabh Bachchan plays a middle-class man who works as a clerk in a departmental store. He lives with his mother and stays next to a slum where his brother lives, who later becomes an alcoholic after he loses his job. One day, Amitabh's brother borrows money from Amitabh's friend Vikas (Arjun Rampal) to pay the loans for Amitabh's house. However, he cannot repay it on time. The slumdwellers are then threatened by the landlord's goons to vacate the place. Amitabh's brother pleads with his friend for more time, but Vikas refuses and calls his goons to beat him up. While returning home, Amitabh is attacked by the same goons again. They threaten him for money for his brother's loan. After returning home, Amitabh tells this incident to his mother who insists him to pay off the loan on her name, but he refuses because it will reveal their financial status to their neighbours. Amitabh's neighbour (Sanjay Dutt) is an ex-cop who earns his living by selling illegal weapons. He tells Amitabh of Vikas' whereabouts. Amitabh tries to find him but fails. Vikas is seen in a pub with his goons where he sings for money, and an aspiring singer (Ayesha Takia) happens to hear him singing. Later, he attempts to make amends by writing down some Hindi words on a wall and asking the girl to list them in order for a reward. The girl is initially sceptical, but decides to help Vikas when she sees how much he needs the money. By remembering the Hindi words, she is able to find where Vikas is living. The girl later meets Vikas' younger brother (Arjun Rampal) and introduces herself as his future wife. However, after seeing her monthly salary, he reports her to the police. Amitabh decides to take revenge on Vikas for his brother's loan. He meets Vikas's sister (Shruti Haasan) and asks for forgiveness by pretending slightly injured in an accident. Hearing this, she allows him to stay with them temporarily until he can pay off what he owes them. He pays off his debt by selling two paintings.
